Biographical and historical information Enactus (formerly SIFE) is an international non-profit organization that establishes student programs on college campuses. Students create social entrepreneurship projects that address the social needs of their local communities. Student teams present their projects at regional and national competitions. The Worcester State chapter of Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE) was established during the 2004-2005 school year. The group's first meeting was during the first week of November 2004, with 12 students in attendance. The team became an official, university-recognized organization when its charter was approved on February 28, 2005. Dr. Joan (Jay) Mahoney and Dr. Bonnie Orcutt served as the student organization's first faculty advisors. In 2012, the SIFE organization changed its name to Enactus, therefore changing the names of its student chapters as well. Under Dr. Mahoney's leadership, the chapter grew to become a major student organization which had more than 50 members at its height. Dr. Mahoney received the 2017 Jack Kahl Entrepreneurial Leadership Award for her outstanding contributions to the WSU team. Upon the retirement of Dr. Mahoney in May 2021, Dr. Mark Wagner became the organization's advisor. As of this writing, WSU Enactus has approximately 25 active members.
